APPLYING THE POWER OF SPORTS TO BUILD STRONG ORGANIZATIONS AND COMMUNITIES

Jaden served as a football manager and recruiting assistant for the Fighting Irish Football team, and under the leadership of Coach Marcus Freeman, he discovered how sports can serve as a powerful tool for building a more equitable and connected future.

Jaden's career has centered around his passion for people, love of forming meaningful relationships, and desire to educate and walk with others through life-shaping decisions. As a Student-Athlete Development Specialist for Indiana University Athletics, he mentors student-athletes and supports their growth beyond the game through career development, alumni engagement, and community partnerships.

Jaden is driven by the mission to expand access and opportunities for anyone interested in sports-related systems, regardless of their age, gender, race, religion, ability, or socioeconomic status. He is seeking opportunities in sports corporate partnerships, community impact, player engagement, and law, as well as in those that complement his unique skill set and values.
